School of Social Work

April 23- April 29, 2025

MESSAGE FROM DIRECTOR

Hello!

Last week registration began, and there were a few blips. As many of you know, we are down an academic advisor which has meant your amazing program coordinators, faculty and staff have been picking up the load (on top of teaching, grading, admissions, and planning graduation!). I appreciate all of your patience. I am pleased to announce Gabriel Davilla has been hired to provide some additional assistance on an interim basis. We are also planning to hire a new academic advisor, whom we hope to have in place this summer.

In the meantime, keep reaching out if you need assistance with registration, advising, or other concerns. We may be just a bit slow in responding, but are doing our best to make sure everyone is supported and ready to start their classes this summer and fall.

School of Social Work Research Spotlight

Dr. Kimberly Knox, Dr. Stacy Gherardi and MSW/MPH Student Lindley Hornsby have 2 research articles accepted for publication, they are titled: School Social Workers Preparation for Special Education Practice: An Exploratory Study accepted to The International Journal of School Social Work, and Exploring State Differences in School Social Worker Preparation to Deliver Special Education Services to Children & Schools. Both articles discuss how school social workers are prepared to be Related Services School Social Workers, and explore state required licensure and preparation differences.

As a GA, I had the great fortune of working with both Dr. Gherardi and Dr. Knox over the past three years. The professors' school social work research piqued my interest because prior to graduate school, I was a preschool teacher at a school with *no* school social workers. I struggled to have conversations with parents about early intervention and other social-emotional needs of students that spanned outside of the classroom. I did not realize school social work was a thing

After moving to New Mexico and beginning my assistantship with Dr. Gherardi, I quickly learned the value of school social workers in the pk-12 setting from doing literature reviews, and I became interested in school social work training. Two years later when I was assigned to work with Dr. Knox, I did more literature reviews, this time focusing on the intersection of school social work, state-specific preparation requirements and social work training to service students with disabilities.

Through my work as a GA, I became aware of the reality that the body of research that informs school social work pre-service training and school social work practice is lacking. Given the limitations of school social work peer-reviewed literature, I am proud to have been a part of a team that has contributed two works to the existing body of research. Furthermore, I am appreciative that our work focused on meeting the needs of students with exceptionalities, an area of expertise in which I had no previous training.

I am hopeful that our work will support preparation initiatives for school social work practitioners as well as inspire inquiries for school social work-focused educators. I am grateful that our School of Social Work is home to faculty that specialize in school social work, and I look forward to seeing the growth of school social work as a specialization at NMSU!

Applications are now open to be a Student Liaison for NASW New Mexico. The NASW-New Mexico (NASW-NM) Student Liaison Program is designed to identify students at all levels of social work education within New Mexico who will serve as a vital link between their respective programs and NASW-NM. This initiative aims to strengthen the relationship between universities and the NASW New Mexico Chapter, fostering a network of student advocates for the social work profession. Liaisons will help ensure that social work students are engaged and informed about NASW-NM activities, advocacy, and events and will encourage greater participation in the broader social work community. Through this program, we are committed to promoting diversity, equity and inclusion and to actively addressing and dismantling systemic racism in our communities. We believe in creating a just and fair society for all.
